MESSAGE FROM SUZANNE OROZCO

What an exciting year! Coming into the Executive Director position, I spent the first few months visiting our field offices and listening to staff. It is important to me to continually evaluate what we are doing to ensure that we will continue to be a vital organization long into the future. We have an amazing group of employees and Governing Board members who are committed to making a difference in people’s lives and who were not afraid to share their opinions and innovative ideas with me.

We also welcomed new faces in three other key leadership positions. Because of this, we took the time to redevelop the leadership team and messaging to staff. We spent time planning strategies to achieve the corporate mission. We recently began to message our Core Values and are incorporating these into the hiring and evaluation process with staff. And we began to re-organize operations by line of business in order to focus on program performance. Our work to improve processes will be ongoing. With two major pieces of regulation published, OMB’s Uniform Cost Principles and DOL’s Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act, we have been moving forward to incorporate changes to our procedural manuals and staff training.

Knowing that sequestration will return in the future and federal funding is ever-more competitive, we are looking at ways to diversify funding and develop new, complementary services to support customers on their path to self-sufficiency. One such service is financial empowerment, which we hope to build into all of our lines of business. Being financially empowered allows individuals the freedom to focus on their goals. So whether those goals are education, jobs or housing, we believe that once empowered, the journey of continuous improvement that impacts not only the individual but also results in better communities can begin.

I also look forward to continuing my listening sessions with staff and as we move into our 50th year of service, I am excited to see where the future takes us.

MESSAGE FROM VICTOR GOMEZ

There is no doubt that 2014 was an extraordinary year for Telamon Corporation. We have a very committed staff, volunteers and Governing Board, always striving in doing the best not only for Telamon, but for the Mission that Telamon embraces in the different places we serve by helping someone to get a better job, getting a child ready for school, assisting someone in buying or keeping their home. We make a difference in the lives of those we serve, which shows the strength and demonstrates the hard work we all do together. I believe we have the best team, and on behalf of the Governing Board, I thank each of you for the dedication and passion you all provide. We will continue to look forward and improve our services. Telamon Corporation will continue to do its best simply because we know we need to make a difference for so many people.

My name is Sherry Placzkowski. In the spring (April) of 1997, I became a field worker in order to provide for my three small daughters after ending a nine and a half year abusive marriage. In Aug. of 1997, my youngest daughter was diagnosed with Leukemia when she was two years old. As a single mother of three small children, the youngest sick, I relented more and more on the job of “field worker” because I was able to take the days I needed to be at the Doctor with my child.

If you worked hard enough and gave lots of hours, the “boss” man wouldn’t hold back as much money from the company “store” for items you charged to survive like food, toilet paper, and rent. I was paid cash for an hourly wage, meaning that I got paid what the boss “felt” I earned. I also got paid by the bucket, usually $5 to $7 dollars a 10 gallon bucket (it depended on the produce and market price). This work was back breaking and hard in all kinds of weather (rain, cold, heat, etc.). You worked if you were sick and weak. It didn’t matter because you owed for housing, food, clothes, etc., and the “boss” man didn’t care if you couldn’t move well-you worked, no excuses. As time moved forward my little one got better and I tried to get out of field work when the “season” ended. I always ended up back in the fields knowing there was no kind of future. It was “cash” pay and that kept my ex-husband from tracking us. I have seen many wrongs done to “migrant” workers by people, but I am blessed to own a social security card and kept my head down and my hands and back busy. I have worked in Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee and it’s always the same no matter where the work is. You were always in “debt” to the “boss man.”

In 2014 I was injured and was blessed to have a “boss man” who really cared for his people. I am older and the injuries would have put me out of work for the “season”, so he asked if I would meet him at the Department of Labor in Valdosta Georgia. I met Mr. Joe from Telamon who asked a lot of questions and made me very nervous. At the end of our first meeting I was asked what I would like to do with my life, huh?? Well, I said I want to be a truck driver and I was introduced to Mary King of Telamon Corporation and my childhood dream started to happen. She asked if I was willing to make a commitment to change my future and that if I was she could help me. She laid out what needed to be done and I said “yes ma’am”, and my life has changed. I now have a future to look forward to instead of just a broken body and public handouts.

Mary King of Telamon Corporation sent me to Wiregrass Tech School, where I enrolled in the CDL driving class. I was the only female in class. I graduated top of my class and found a job with a wonderful company and am now looking forward to being a home owner soon. All along my journey I have received support from my now very dear “friends” at Telamon, a Mr. Joe, Mrs. Carmen, and Mrs. Mary King. All along she has been very supportive and helped me to change my life for the better. I now wake up before day break with a smile instead of dread for the work day, and future I will forever be grateful to have. When I first came to Telamon Corporation, I had made $10,560.00 working in the field. I am now earning over $1,000 per week, plus revenue for the deliveries. Thank you again for all that has been done to make my story a success, and for giving me the tools for a future. I not only dream, now I live my dream.

Sincerely,
Sherry Placzkowski
I first would like to start off by thanking the TRC Head Start staff for all they have done in regards to my son, Zamar Pierre Lewis. Zamar is a product of a teenage relationship. I had him at the young age of nineteen. At the age of 21, I moved out of my parents’ home and was out on my own with Zamar’s father. During this time, Zamar was exposed to a very toxic environment. I believe this is where a lot of his behaviors have stemmed from.

Zamar did not attend daycare until the age of 3. Zamar has not ever been in the wrong in my eyes, he has always just been himself, a 4-year-old boy who is full of energy and always on the go, but then I started receiving calls from his daycare. First, the calls were about him not wanting to take a nap, and how he was disrupting the other children’s nap time. Then, the phone calls progressed to him hitting and spitting. It got to the point where I was being called every day to come and pick him up because he was “uncontrollable.” Ultimately, I decided to remove him from their program because there was no progress being made.

Finally, my mother who is a staff member of Transition Resources Corporation Head Start suggested I sign Zamar up for Head Start to see if it would help in any way. I was very reluctant, but I honestly did not have any other options. My son had already been kicked out of two programs and was being held back at another. I did not have a choice. When the behaviors once again began occurring, I was upset, but I appreciated the fact that the staff was willing to try to work on the issues. Once the behaviors started getting worse, a meeting was called. My initial thoughts were “Great! He’s going to be kicked out again, and now what am I going to do?” My assumption couldn’t have been further from the truth as the staff had called the meeting to come up with ways to improve my child’s behavior. I was so grateful that we were all on the same page on what was going to be done so that Zamar could have successful days.

The meeting lasted for almost an hour, and I learned more about the TRC than I ever could have imagined. The staff has a genuine passion for the care of the children and a real concern for the families in their program. I could not have imagined receiving the help that I have from this group of individuals. From the teachers to the site manager, they were all on board to help Zamar be successful. This was the day we all outlined a plan and stuck with it.

Since the meeting, Zamar has not only had successful days, but he is a totally different child. The school provides therapy to him once a week with a private professional, which on my own I could never afford. This program is built around one thing, FAMILY. I feel so confident in knowing that every day I take my son to school, not only is he learning, but he is in a safe, friendly, and caring environment. Along with him having productive days, I was able to make the Dean’s List. A lot of positive things have come from this situation.

I cannot say thank you enough to everyone who has played a role in my child’s success but I am forever grateful to them. Not only for their concern for my child, but for showing up to work every day excited and willing and equipped to touch lives. If only every child could experience school in this manner. “Every child should have a caring adult in their lives. And that’s not always a biological parent or family member. It may be a friend or neighbor. Often times it is a teacher.” – Joe Manchin

Again, I would just like to express my gratitude and cannot praise the TRC head start program enough for all that they do.

Sincerely,
Renee Reyes
NEW EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP
In February 2014, Suzanne M. Orozco began her tenure as Telamon’s Executive Director. She became the fourth chief executive in Telamon’s history and the first woman to lead the corporation. Mrs. Orozco joined the non-profit in 1992 as State Director of Telamon’s Head Start program in Michigan. Since 1998, she has been responsible for managing Head Start, the National Farmworker Jobs Program, and other programs in five states as Telamon’s Deputy Executive Director.

After announcing the results of the Board’s nationwide search for a new Executive Director, Dr. John H. Newman, then Chair of Telamon’s Governing Board, stated, “Suzanne has the vision, leadership skills, and experience to launch Telamon into the next 50 years of providing programs that improve the lives of many in the communities that we serve.”

Mrs. Orozco succeeded Mr. Richard A. Joanis, who spent 33 years as Executive Director of Telamon, having built the organization from a one-state operation into a nationally recognized multidisciplinary nonprofit organization serving America’s migrant and seasonal farmworkers, children, youth and the rural poor in twelve states.

TELAMON MICHIGAN NFJP OFFERS INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS TO MIGRANT STUDENTS
Telamon was awarded a grant that establishes individual development accounts for 25 students enrolled in Michigan State University’s College Assistance Migrant Program (CAMP).

The Telamon Farmworker IDA Program is designed to help low-income individuals create and maintain a savings account that will help participants develop money management skills and help decrease debts related to a post-secondary education. The MSU Federal Credit Union works closely with Telamon and MSU CAMP in providing 25 eligible students the opportunity to participate in this match savings plan. Savings accounts are established for eligible students and when they meet the $500 savings goal, they can utilize $4,000 in federal and non-federal match funds.

MSUFCU assists students by opening and maintaining their savings accounts, conducting financial literacy training, and providing $2,000 in non-federal match funds per student. The savings earned throughout the year-long program is then used for post-secondary education and related educational expenses.

“Personally I can’t think of a better way of living Telamon’s mission than by the establishment of the Telamon Farmworker IDA Program,” said Don Kuchnicki, Telamon’s Director of Employment and Training Programs for the State of Michigan.

Telamon enrolled its 2014 cohort of CAMP students and financial literacy training began in February 2015.

EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION EXPANDS THROUGH EARLY HEAD START - CHILD CARE PARTNERSHIPS
Telamon and TRC were awarded funding to expand services to families living in poverty with at-risk infants and toddlers by developing Early Head Start - Child Care Partnership projects in four states. The partnerships combine Telamon’s experience with comprehensive Early Head Start services with the existing resources of local partner agencies serving at-risk families to provide new enrollment opportunities or expand existing services to a full Early Head Start (EHS) service model.

In Indiana, TRC works with partner providers United Day Care Center, Kids Korner, Huffer Memorial Children’s Center to provide new staffing and training for providers and parents to fully implement EHS services for 114 infants and toddlers in Delaware and Madison Counties, Indiana.

Telamon North Carolina Head Start Programs expanded EHS services to 72 children through partnerships with child care centers in Wake County. Forty slots were funded to serve infants and toddlers in Chatham County.

In Tennessee, Telamon began providing EHS services to 72 low-income infants, toddlers, and pregnant women at our centers in Greene, Carter, and Unicoi Counties. The proposed project is an expansion that will extend services to resident low-income families through EHS, including some former migrant and seasonal farmworker families.

Through a partnership with the state’s Department of Education, Telamon’s Delaware Head Start Programs expanded funded enrollment in Early Head Start services by 40 slots in Sussex County.

HOME OWNERSHIP COUNSELING
Financial management is often the key to successful homeownership. Understanding how to plan for unexpected and regularly occurring expenses is key to helping families avoid falling into a state of default and possible foreclosure, eviction, repossession, and decreased credit scores. Telamon facilitated this understanding by providing group education workshops and one-on-one counseling sessions to empower 214 families in North Carolina, South Carolina, Indiana, Michigan, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland and Delaware under a HUD Multi-State Comprehensive grant.

For clients seeking to purchase their first home, Telamon’s pre-purchase homebuyer education and counseling program is designed to overcome the challenges of achieving homeownership by helping clients to increase credit scores, save for down payments, learn about responsibilities associated with homeownership, as well as the intricacies of mortgage terminologies and availability of various mortgage products not always advertised in mainstream lending institutions. Altogether, Telamon assisted 130 families through this pre-purchase initiative, with 42 becoming first-time homebuyers, 72 currently in the process of building credit and savings, and 16 deciding that purchasing a home might not be the best option for them at the time.

Bleak job prospects and notices of foreclosure have continued to plague homeowners in a prolonged economic recovery for working and middle class families. The national average for foreclosures is 1 in every 1,153 with a financial cost of $54,906 to the economy for every closure based on HUD’s 2009 study. Telamon participated in foreclosure prevention services through the HUD Multi-State Comprehensive Grant with a total of 93 foreclosures prevented as a result of these efforts. In partnership with the North Carolina Housing Finance Agency, an additional 83 foreclosures were prevented in 2014 resulting in a total positive economic impact of $9.7 million.

FARM LABOR HOUSING
On-farm housing is critically important for farmworkers and growers alike. Farmworkers need comfortable, safe, and sanitary housing for themselves and their families to rest and prepare meals after what can be very long work days in tough working conditions. Growers understand that good housing enhances productivity and aids in recruiting workers. Additionally, housing units are required to meet and maintain standards set forth by the U.S. Department of Labor. Many times, existing housing units must undergo extensive upgrades, repairs and maintenance to improve livability and meet standards. Funded by the Department of Labor in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Georgia along with funding from Reynolds America Inc. in targeting tobacco growers and farmworkers in North Carolina, Telamon’s program provides growers with a dollar-for-dollar match for repairs and upgrades to existing units. In 2014, Telamon provided grants to 116 farms in four states to improve housing infrastructure with HVAC installations, waste water systems, kitchen appliances, and hot water heaters. Contractors worked during the off-season to install new roofs, windows, doors, and plumbing to improve the living conditions for farmworkers housed on-site. These improvements will benefit over 1,100 farmworkers and their families during the 2015 agricultural season.

“I am working with numerous grower(s) who took advantage of the (funding) and are improving the living conditions for their migrant workforce. Every grower I spoke with commended Telamon on their customer service and their promptness.”

—Drew Long, Housing Inspector, NC Department of Labor

TRC HELPS STUDENTS OF PROMISE DEVELOP CONFIDENCE AND SKILLS TO PURSUE THEIR DREAMS

Transition Resources Corporation portfolio of programs includes JAG services to students enrolled in Marion County, IN schools.

TRC’s portfolio of services includes JAG services to students enrolled in Marion County high schools. JAG (Jobs for America’s Graduates) is a school-to-career program implemented in high schools, alternative schools and community colleges across the country. JAG’s mission is to keep young people in school through graduation and provide work-based learning experiences that will lead to career advancement opportunities, or to enroll in a postsecondary institution that leads to a rewarding career.

TRC produces great results with 90% of the students served in our JAG program graduating from high school.

One student who found a career path through TRC’s JAG program is Haley Garmon. Upon enrolling in JAG, Haley had several barriers to success. After graduating from high school, she attended the automotive program at Ivy Tech Community College. Haley was the only female in her class at Ivy Tech and finished with one of the highest grades, then found employment at an auto shop. Haley credits the learning experiences and support provided by JAG with helping her develop the confidence, workplace knowledge and networking skills needed to pursue a non-traditional career path. “[JAG] helps you in so many ways not only networking and communicating with co-workers but reading and writing skills … how to build a professional resume, and career choices. If you are thinking about going into [JAG] it’s a great decision - they just teach you so much … and they really inspire you to do anything you want to do.”
